

NACCHO

National Aboriginal Community Controlled Health Organisation

Media Alert

14-6-2011

Tuesday 14 June 11.30 am

Parliament House Canberra - Committee Room 2S3

Media Conference

Aboriginal Health: Taking the next step in National Health Reform

Mr Justin Mohamed Chair of NACCHO* will outline how to reform the way we advance Aboriginal health.

It is a plan to provide financial transparency in spending of Aboriginal health dollars, to measure the effectiveness of programs across all sectors, and to plan for the future in a genuine partnership as we work towards closing the gap in life expectancy.

*The National Aboriginal Community Controlled Health Organisation (NACCHO) is Australia's national peak body in Aboriginal health.

NACCHO's members are the 152 Aboriginal community-controlled health services across urban, regional and remote Australia providing over 1.85 million episodes of care to clients each year.

NACCHO represents Aboriginal governed medical services with 40 years experience delivering holistic comprehensive primary health care in their communities.

NACCHO Media Contact: Chris Hallett 04 0770 4788

www.naccho.org.au

http://www.naccho.org.au/policies/Aboriginal\_Health\_Authority.html